This training was under the auspices of Global Green Leader program which has the objective of preparing young leaders to have good environmental perspective.

only in the form of barren land. The conversion of this barren land into dense and intact forest, as can be seen at the present time, constitutes an impressive success story.

During this training, the Korean students conducted group presentation which comprised 3 topics, namely: 1. Description of Korean forests 2. Description of large scale plantation and forestry in Korea 3. Cooperation between Korea and other countries in forestry sector.

Activities being conducted were among other things eco-edutourism and sharing of information and experiences between Korean students and Indonesian students (students of Faculty of Forestry, IPB).
