

Forest Management Practices (PTKH) of Department of Forestry, Faculty of Agriculture, University of Riau 2015

Gunung Walat, Sukabumi – Forest Management Practices (PTKH) of Department of Forestry, Faculty of Agriculture, University of Riau, had been held from 24 August – 4 September 2017 in Gunung Walat University Forest, Sukabumi.

During their 2 weeks in Gunung Walat, the students practising subjects around forestry science, such as Forest Inventory, Forest Development, Forest Conservation, Management of Non-Timber Forest Products, and Forest Mapping. This practice was guided directly by the IPB Faculty of Forestry lecturers and assistant lecturers.

gunungwalat.ipb.ac.id

gunungwalat@apps.ipb.ac.id

GUNUNG WALAT UNIVERSITY FOREST

Besides doing the practice at Gunung Walat, the students had the opportunity to visit the forest conservation centre, namely Gunung Gede and Pangrango National Parks, Cianjur, West Java.

It was such a great impression for the majority of students, who claimed to be the first to set their feet in the West Java region.

“We have new experiences and lessons. Maybe there is a signal problem, but there is an exciting football field and it is more fun playing football here. And here you can also learn to manage time, get up early, track, do your assignments, quizzes, then more material that makes you sleepy and it’s very tiring. I personally, and representing other friends, want to thank the lecturer’s assistant, GWUF, and related lecturers who have given us the knowledge that is very useful for us all” said one representative of University of Riau students when met at the location of the activity.

[gwuf]

gunungwalat.ipb.ac.id

gunungwalat@apps.ipb.ac.id